Thank you Techqueria. I felt like I didn't have the special tech network that other people seemed to find, but now I feel like I'm a part of a really good one <3 proud to celebrate that it's been one year since I joined Techqueria 🌮🥳 I've met many amazing people, found great volunteering opportunities (some of which I'm still involved with) and overall, I've felt supported regardless of whatever is going on in the world, I'm looking forward to my second year within this community while I'm still new to the professional world (and hence think that I may not have much to share), I want to challenge myself to contribute more in the upcoming year (edited)

Started my UX design apprenticeship at Niantic this month. First time getting paid solid money for tech work. My career path did not play out how I initially planned when I started career developing 2 years ago but I'm glad where it brought me.

So thankful to the Techqueria community for helping me keep my head on my shoulders, I moved to California haphazardly last year not knowing anybody and right off the bat cafecitos and the networking events, conferences burrito days helped me get community and friends so quickly.

Super thankful for Techqueria leadership for the huge investment and care they pour into this. Super thankful to the skilled workers here who have all helped me in many ways over the last year. The job referrals, the advice, the education, the guidance.

Hugely I want to should out @Liz Dominguez-Jackson for introducing me to the treehouse apprenticeship program and helping me get set up in the application for it. And @ThisisTrini for all of the hard work at Niantic and getting this program set up and running smoothly.

The love and labor from Techqueria members made the difference between me being evicted and unemployed during a pandemic and me earning an 80k salary to recover. The support and help from you all has started the beginning of generational wealth for my family line and is allowing me to get out of poverty.

Thank you all.

Guys, after a long long time I finally got an offer for an entry level position as a developer / software engineer. It's not the best entry level offer (low ball) out of college but it's a start and I'm really happy for the opportunity. Honestly, I was slowly giving up given how the pandemic is still affecting us somehow.

Just took this offer like a week ago. Feeling excited. (edited)

I was awarded with a “core value” award from my company that other colleagues nominated me for! With everything that went on this year-- it felt great to be recognized for my work in front of the whole company (+ got more stock options 😊)!!

My Sr. Director pulled me aside today and told me how great I did on a presentation I had to give to a group of Sr. Managers. To top, he also said that I should look out for good things to come in January as a “new opportunity” might arise. I know nothing was promised, but it was good to get that nod from him on a job well done. 🐶

I'm getting closer to my graduation. I just signed up for my last 3 classes of my Masters in Data Science. I will do the capstone in the summer so I will graduate August 2021. At times it seemed as an eternity because I've doing it part-time because I work full-time so, in total it took me 2.5 years but time flies and I can't wait to hold my diploma in my hands. I got to give kudos to Techqueria and my friends at #infosec and #data-science for their continued support and motivation, to my friends @Rory Chinchilla \(They/Them\) and @Jackie O. whom I've met here for pushing me and encouraging me. We have formed a great accountability group 💜👉 (edited)

I'd like to think that this happened as a direct result of joining Techqueria. I've met so many cool/helpful people from all over the Latinx world. Before I joined Techqueria I tried meeting and connecting with people in person here in Houston only to feel left out or like I didn't belong, a burden even. But here I feel a real connection 🤝. Thank you to all the people that helped me along the way (too many to list). <https://twitter.com/DocSpace/status/1334890261785292802?s=20>
